SON OF WAR HERO TAKES BRIDE

Miss Evelyn Herlihy Becomes Wife of Daniel Chadwick, Both of Waveland.

Waveland was the scene of an interesting and beautiful home wedding on Wednesday afternoon, at 6 o'clock, when Miss Evelyn Herlihy became the bride of Mr. Daniel Chadwick, both residents of Waveland.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. L. M. Herlihy, in Coleman avenue. Rev. Father Costello, pastor of the Church of St. Claire, officiating, in the presence of a large number of invited friends.

The bride looked charming in her bridal robes, tulle, tulle and orange blossom, and carried a bouquet of white carnations, and smilax fern. The groom wore the regulation wedding costume, and the couple looked attractively handsome. They were attended by Mr. John D. Moller, of Bay St. Louis, as best man, and Miss Geneva Herlihy, a sister of the bride, as maid of honor. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. George Herlihy.

A reception followed at the home, which was largely attended. There was an unusually large number of wedding presents on display, which were generally admired, and which attested to the popularity and high esteem in which the contracting parties were held.

The bride is a daughter of the late Hypolite M. Herlihy and Mrs. L. M. Herlihy. She is a talented and cultured young lady, and is generally admired and loved by all who know her. She is well known locally, a native of Hancock County.

The groom too is well known. He is a son of the late Major and Mrs. Chadwick; Major Chadwick, a heroic figure of the Civil War, whose name appears in school histories. He is a successful young business man and stands high in the popular estimation of the community where he lives and wherever he is known.

Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick have the best wishes of many friends. They have gone to Europe on a honeymoon trip, and will return in a few days.

HANCOCK COUNTY FAIR MAN-AGEMENT SOLICITS SUG-GESTIONS FOR 1920.

Thanks Exhibitors and Wishes to Ascertain Their Preference for Next Year—This Year's Fair was Not So Great a Success. Then Why Not a Commercial Side to the Enterprise in Future?

The management of the recent Hancock County Fair thoughtfully sent out the following letter of thanks and appreciation to all exhibitors at the close of the fair, and the thought was both courteous and practical, asking, as the letter does, for suggestions regarding next year's display. The letter follows:

Bay St. Louis, Miss., Oct. 11, 1919. We, the Hancock County Fair Association, wish to thank you for your hearty co-operation and interest in the County Fair and for the exhibit you brought. Had everyone given the co-operation and interest that you did, we would have had a much larger and better fair.

Your influence and co-operation toward creating interest in the fair movement will determine the success of the fair of this county in the future. The Fair Association will be delighted to hear from you at any time in regard to your views of the fair.

Respectfully yours,

Hancock Co. Fair Association.

As a copy of the foregoing was officially addressed to the Board, that part soliciting views for next year's fair, towards making it more of a success than this year's effort has proven, we assume to make only one suggestion; namely, that the feature of commercial exhibits, which proved so interesting in 1917, in addition to the regular and live stock exhibits, be featured extensively next year, intensively. This would not sacrifice the purpose of the fair—the expansion of the farming, live stock and kindred industries, and practice of home economics to a more proficient degree, but would widen the scope of the fair to the extent that business interests of Bay St. Louis, which the fair is annually held, would take an active interest and not only contribute many additional exhibits, but could prove the one dominant factor of ameliorating the financial side and revenues of the enterprise.

By all means, if we are to have the Hancock County Fair next year, and that we will let the local merchants and other business firms be represented by displaying their wares and let them pay for the space their booths will occupy, and for the advertising thus afforded, and for the membership in 1917, what an unusually interesting exhibit the Merchants Bank, the Bay Jewelry Store, W. L. Bourgeois, H. Weston Lumber Co., Jordan River Lumber Co., and others displayed.

The Echo would be pleased to have an actual operation, turning out advertising literature to be given away during the two days thousands of visitors attended. And we, like others, would be glad to pay for the privilege. We are desiring to give variety to the exhibits, interesting the public more and swelling the funds of the Hancock County Fair Association, and desiring to hold the fair and giving away attractive cash prizes.

As to the exhibit of a part of an up-to-date printing plant in full operation, we dare say this would be new to many a boy and girl and possibly to many more of the grown-ups in Hancock County.

By all means let us have commercial exhibits at our county fair next year. It will mean more interest—more education—more dollars.

Mr. Pittman and Miss Grier and other members of the management of the fair, you solicited our suggestion. You have it herewith. It is respectfully submitted.

Circus at Gulfport Next Wednesday.

When the Sells-Floto Super Circus makes its appearance in Gulfport on Wednesday, November 6th, for two performances, afternoon and night, the thousands who will visit this big amusement enterprise, will witness a real circus treat, for never before in the circus world, has so many acts of real merit been congregated under one circus banner. There will be a quarter million tons of elephant performing in the ring, rings of fire, the most pachydermic display of the world, and with this circus is the only elephant that ever carried its trunk mounted on its tusks while walking around the hippodrome track on its hind legs; there will be aerial acts, the dome of the tent being alive with flying humanity, each having something new and novel in off-the-ground work; there'll be horsemanship by some of the greatest riders of modern times; State horses and performance, bare acts full of comedy; wire acts, the cleverest that money can secure; contortion novelties; the Dervish, contortionists in their whirling acts 'round the hippodrome, the aerial butterflies in costumes of beauty; the troupe of clowns, and features innumerable. But with it all the fun section of the program has not been slighted. Forty clowns, famous ones, take care of this part of the program. The street parade is scheduled for 11 o'clock, sure. The performances begin at 2 and 8 o'clock with the great spectacular extravaganza, "The Birth of the Rainbow."

Doors open one hour earlier to give ample time to inspect the large menagerie and attend the lengthy program given by the Sells-Floto concert band of forty pieces.

The prizes awarded by the hostess were unusually attractive and well worth striving for. A series of spirited games were played, after which the contestants were served delectable refreshments. Mrs. Freret's party was one of the most enjoyable and social successes of the early fall season.

The Effect of Boozing.

The spectacle that John Sharp Williams made of himself in the Senate of the United States Thursday can best be described as painful, rather than pathetic.

But with all of its ugly features there will probably some good come from it, as it points in no uncertain manner how certainly the excessive use of liquor will warp the mind, deaden the heart and shivel the soul of a human being.

There was a time when an opinion or an expression from Williams carried weight and challenged respect at the hands of the people.

Today he makes just about as much impression as would the bite of a red bug in the hide of an elephant. No, John; there is absolutely no danger of your being assassinated, physically. But politically speaking, there is a strong probability that you are in very grave danger. Natchez Democrat.

An Important Matter for Voters.

To the people of Mississippi—The present method of distributing the State public school fund is unfair, because on State money alone, in some counties, the schools are able to run seven, eight, or even nine months, paying maximum salaries to teachers, while in other counties the schools can hardly be maintained for four five or six months, paying minimum salaries.

A petition signed by more than 8,000 qualified electors of the State has been filed with the Secretary of State calling for an election, on the proposed amendment to the Constitution, so as to authorize the Legislature to appropriate the State's public school fund in such a way as to equalize the public school terms throughout the State. The amendment consists of adding to Section 208 as it now stands, the following sentence: "But the Legislature shall have authority to make an additional appropriation to be disbursed by the State Board of Education in such manner as to equalize the public school terms throughout the State." The Legislature tried to remedy this matter in 1914, but its acts were declared unconstitutional.

On State money alone, the public schools of the State should run for an equal length of time in every county, no any more to one child than it does to another. I trust that this qualified electors of Mississippi will go the polls at the time of the regular election, November 4th, and vote for the proposed amendment.

Very respectfully,
W. F. ROBINSON,
State Superintendent of Education.

MONKEY BRIDGES ARE MYTH LIFE OF DOG IN BELGIUM

Famous Scientist Attempts to Explain the Origin of the Story.

From our school geographies we read to learn that South American monkeys cross alligator-infested streams by holding their tails and legs to form a living bridge. In school "readers" published as late as 1897 there are pictures of this extraordinary feat of monkey acrobatics. Prof. E. W. Gidger, in an article quoted by the Scientific American, attempts to explain the origin of this story, that is not believed by any recent explorer.

So far as it can be traced it was first told by Padre Jose Acosta in 1590. The first person to dispute it was Baron Humboldt. Finally Messrs. Geo. E. Miller and George K. Chubb of the American Museum of Natural History, who have done so much traveling and collecting in South America, suggest to Professor Gidger that the story of the "monkey bridge" has come about through observation of a procession of monkeys crossing a ravine or stream on a pendant liana.

Koreans Well Advanced.

The Koreans are much superior to both Japanese and Chinese in culture of heart and in mentality. They are progressive on constructive lines; in economics they equal America, and in spiritual life is well balanced, both men and women being eager for knowledge on ethical lines. They are self-reliant and refined in their moral nature.—Chicago Daily News.

Does Not Loaf as They Do in America, but Is Put to Pulling Carts.

The expression, "a dog's life," must have originated in this part of Europe. In Belgium and Holland the dogs do not loaf about as they do in America. In Holland I saw one dog pulling a cart in which three men were sitting, and on the roads we passed many dogs pulling carts, writes a Belgian correspondent in the Kansas City Star. Even more dogs are used to pull carts in Belgium, as the Germans left very few horses in this country. To judge by appearance, virtually all the husky able-bodied dogs in Belgium are "broke to harness." But the roads are good and the carts not heavy, usually, and the dogs seem to like it. The drivers are folding back rather than driving many of the dogs we passed, and in one village we saw a dog bark and beg to be hitched up when a woman started out on a short trip with a push cart. When she yielded and hitched up the dog, we saw why she had hesitated. The dog was a big, strong fellow, and so eager to pull that she had a hard time holding him back.

Unquenchable.

Emilism (in the bay of Naples, watching Vesuvius)—You've nothing like that in America!

Yank—No, but we've got Niagara Falls, and they'd put the darned thing out in five minutes!

Want of principle is the principal want of a mean man.

FASHIONS IN FURS FOR FALL-WINTER

Peltry of Every Conceivable Variety Is to Be Much in Evidence.

STRIPE IS VERY DESIRABLE

Borders and Bands of Rich Color in Contrasting Arrangements Are Used—New Shades for Fall.

A poor excuse is better than none, and an excuse will comfort her conscience as she dips deep in her pocketbook and purchases one of the fur wraps of the new season with the fact that a cloth suit or coat would cost in some cases almost as much, writes a prominent fashion correspondent.

In truth furs are proportionately about as expensive and the only reason that there is anything within reach is that every conceivable fur is in fashion.

Paris has been astonishingly catholic in this respect of late and under the exigencies of the times admitted to the list of possible furs such lesser pelts as Mongolian goat, rabbit, coney, Manchurian dog and even ordinary house cat.

As the scarcity of furs continued through last winter old furs were dragged out of the moth ball closet and worn until there was not a fur left that might not be seen on the streets of Paris.

Fortunately this brought every fur into play, for just imagine the prices of only two or three furs had happened to be in fashion, as in some seasons past.

This is not to say that there are not favorite furs this year, too, but because some of the less expensive furs are in better standing than usual is not an indication that such, ermine or any of the furs that are always high in price are out of it. Indeed, it is not so much a question of the kind of fur as the manner in which it is made up and the color. Gray fur, squirrel and chinchilla are a shade more in demand than those in other tones.

Stripes are in Evidence.

Stripes, so very well liked in frocks and suits, find reflection in the furs in the arrangement of the markings, so any fur that has by nature a dark stripe is very desirable for the large wraps that are so frequent.

For this purpose, chinchilla and mink are immensely popular and the things that the designers do with the pelts are extraordinary.

On a wrap of mink for evening or afternoon wear the stripes run up and down for the major portion, but a wide band of the fur with the stripes running in the opposite direction is united in the front corners and crosses the back at the bottom. The collar on this wrap, which is typically French, is very large and falls over the shoulders and half way down the arms bordered with a horizontal band of mink, bringing the line straight across the figure.

The Parisian with her short skirts wears these all enveloping wraps exceedingly well. Exactly the length of the skirt underneath, the wrap still escapes being cumbersome, particularly as the cut is most apt to be straight and the sleeves rudimentary. Either sits in a cape or very short sleeves in the coats are seen.

Neither American makers nor buyers abroad favor the short sleeves in furs, so the coats and coats on this side are all offered with regulation sleeves.

Large Collars and Cuffs.

Large collars and cuffs of the longer-haired pelts are a feature of many fall suits. Skunk, fox and pointed fox are used and the collars are cut high, giving a luxurious air to the suit. When the use of bands and large pockets is noted it is usually in close fur, as seal, squirrel or beaver. A suit of French blue velours is fashioned with fur lining from the waist and a vest and high rolling chin collar of squirrel fur. The fur is arranged so that the stripes run horizontally across the front of the vest. The simple tailored suit without a belt and trimmed with large collar and cuffs of fur is sure to be one of the smartest features of the fall openings.

Pervenche is one of the new shades that have been captured for the fall. It is named for the little French flower by that name, which we see once in a while in an old garden in this country under the name of myrtle.

Many Browns and Tans.

Duvetyn is not considered as smart as velvet for the fall or winter wear. Also one will note when scanning the collection in the best shops that there are almost no dark blue hats, but quantities of all shades of browns and tans, while feathers are greatly in the majority as trimming. Velvet shirred and plaited very closely and very cleverly handled is sufficient to distinguish some of the very high-priced models.

Two new sport hats of special interest are masterpieces in handwork and Striking and beautiful combination of mink and squirrel in this extremely modish winter creation. The hat is of gray velvet with rose brocade silk.

In very different ways. All the vivid colors are used in floss in a turban-shaped affair, and that each shade holds none of its value it is embroidered in a more or less irregular tan shape all by itself and not intertwined with any other color. This hat is also suitable for wear with a strictly tailored-made suit.

TAILS AS A DECORATION

Again, it may be merely a matter of taste, but the wrap or fur piece that can count the most tails is easily the winner.

Probably the rage for tails is traceable to the rage for fringe and any and everything that dangles with every motion of the wearer. Seldom are the tails placed anywhere near the spot nature intended them to be. Placed close enough together to form a semblance of fringe is the approved method, but as this is decidedly expensive the close formation in short spaces is sometimes seen.

The dollman more in evidence here than abroad is very apt to show a long fringe of tails that runs from the wrist straight down under the arms to the bottom of the hem, otherwise it may run down the sides and around the back or around the bottom without any at the sleeves.

It is seen used in two ways about the bottom, either placed at the top of the hem falling on top of the fur or about the lower edge and hanging free. An ermine evening wrap by an American house has a tail fringe all above the hem, the little dark tails placed very close and showing up well against the white fur. The sleeves of this wrap are wide and floppy, being supplied with a separate elongated flap like a cape, and the collar, very strangely, is of silver fox.

Fruits as Trimmings.

Fruits are extensively used as a trimming for evening gowns. The Parisian house of Brandt, which held its opening recently, especially showed some of these models and varied it by using flowers. Fur plays an important part in trimming the evening gowns also. Bandeaux to be worn on the head instead of a hat for evening wear are shown by practically all of the dressmakers; the bandeau carrying out the idea of the gown. Milliners have done a big business in this class of merchandise also.

DEMAND FOR U. S. GOODS

Reversal of Trade Conditions Indicated by Requests for Apparel Samples Made in U. S. A.

An interesting reversal of trade conditions is indicated in a transaction made a few days ago in New York. The representative of one of the famous French fashion houses ordered a line of samples, consisting of coats, suits and dresses, shipped to Paris. From the office of the firm in that city, commissioners will be delegated to offer the line throughout Europe. That a French house should undertake to sell American fashions abroad is considered a tribute to the styles produced in this country.

The scarcity and high prices asked for French pelts and tailors are making the domestic trade, by way of the Parisian house, a very is reported to be unprecedented, one department handling both foreign and domestic lines, figuring that the increase during the last two months has been 1,000 per cent. The American houses are showing a willingness to meet the requirements of exporters by putting labels on their goods in the language of the country in which they will be sold and also using different packing where such is necessary.

Frocks and Blouses of Batiste.

Both frocks and blouses of batiste are being selected by many a woman nowadays. Whether dress or blouse, the batiste is frequently embroidered to an all-over pattern. The effect is charming as when, for example, one finds a white batiste embroidered all over in pink rosebuds and trimmed with tiny loops of pink batiste made

GREAT BELIEVER IN BLACK-DRAUGHT

Oklahoma Lady Tells How Her Husband Believes in Black-Draught and Uses It For Many Ailments.

Nowata, Okla.—Mrs. V. B. Dawson, a resident of this place, says: "My husband is a great believer in Black-Draught and thinks it cures about everything."

It is splendid for headache, constipation (which usually causes headache), indigestion or any kind of stomach trouble, and we just keep it for these troubles. I don't know when we haven't used it, and we always find it satisfactory."

I know it has done us both a lot of good and saved us many dollars. I use it in teaspoon doses at first and follow with small doses, and it sure does make a person feel like new."

Honest Advertising.

THIS is a topic we all hear now-a-days because so many people are inclined to exaggerate. Yet has any physician told you that we claimed unreasonable remedial properties for Fletcher's Castoria? Just ask them. We won't answer it ourselves, we know what the answer will be.

That it has all the virtues to-day that was claimed for it in its early days is to be found in its increased use, the recommendation by prominent physicians, and our assurance that its standard will be maintained.

Imitations are to be found in some stores and only because of the Castoria that Mr. Fletcher created. But it is not the genuine Castoria that Mr. Fletcher honestly advertised, honestly placed before the public and from which he honestly expects to receive his reward.

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your alive child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of Your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.
